NORMAN THOMAS SCORES HOOVER
Associated Press
Oakland, Cal., Oct. 6.—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for the presidency of the United States, declared in a campaign address here yesterday evening that President Hoover's Iowa speech was "an able, tolerably consistent and sometimes eloquent defence of the capitalist position which he undoubtedly holds with much sincerity."
The Socialist candidate said the Hoover speech at Des Moines "calls for an equally sincere, consistent and comprehensive statement" from the Democratic candidate, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, "as to how his brand of capitalism differs from the President's."

FARRIS BEGINS JURY ADDRESS

Taking Evidence in Dr. Seldon's Trial Comes to End in Vancouver

Two Former Attorneys-General of B.C. Clash When Manson Takes Stand

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Oct. 6.—A. A. Manson, K.C., testified in rebuttal for plaintiffs this morning in the trial of the damage action against Dr. George E. Seldon brought by Mr. and Mrs. G. Plowright, in connection with an operation performed on Mrs. Plowright for an injured hip. Following Mr. Manson's evidence, J. W. Den, K.C., opened his address to the jury for Dr. Seldon.

Mr. Manson stated that he had a conversation with Dr. L. H. Webster shortly before the first trial, which took place last April, and Dr. Webster told him that he could not recall the operation, performed by Dr. Seldon, and was unable to assist Mr. Manson. Dr. Webster who administered the anaesthetic, had given evidence for defendant that he observed Dr. Seldon measure the Plowright's legs after the reduction manipulations.

A second defense witness, Dr. Roy Huggard, was also contradicted by Mr. Manson. Dr. Huggard, who was in a conversation at the General Hospital last January, told him that he, Dr. Huggard, knew nothing of the operation, and that he had just looked in and got out again.

When Mr. Farris prepared to cross-examine Mr. Manson, a large audience prepared for an exchange of fire between the two former attorneys-general. However, the questioning lasted a few minutes only. Mr. Farris directing his cross-examination to what Mr. Manson's firm was going to get out of the case.

Witnesses said that he had not rendered a bill as yet to the Plowrights, and he did not know until he checked up with the firm's accountant, what money had been advanced for disbursements. He expected that there was a considerable indebtedness owing by the Plowrights to his firm. He stated that Dr. Wace had returned to him as a medical witness, and that Dr. Huggard, who also testified against Dr. Seldon, had been paid some of his traveling expenses, but was not asking for fees this time.

When the Earl and Countess of Egmont conclude their honeymoon and return to the ranch house at Fridley, the young earl plans to get down to work and whip his farm into shape. It is possible that he may take his bride across the Atlantic some day to see his country seat, Avon Castle, Ringwood, Hampshire.

Conservative Party of Britain in Convention Approves Ottawa Treaties

Chamberlain Says Way Clear For Britain to Negotiate With Other Nations

By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer
Blackpool, Eng., Oct. 6.—The Ottawa Imperial Conference was lauded by Conservatives as a landmark in the history of the British Empire. The conference, which was the crowning achievement of a wonderful year which is the beginning of a new epoch.

Without a dissenting voice the annual conference of the Conservative party of Great Britain warmly congratulated the National Government on the success of the Ottawa conference. "The conference," said a resolution unanimously carried, "records its view that the agreements concluded at Ottawa have materially advanced the cause of imperial economy and will result in substantial and increasing advantage to British industry and agriculture."

Mr. Chamberlain declared that when he reached Ottawa he had the impression that the Empire was in a state of confusion. He said that the Empire was in a state of confusion, and that it was not until he reached Ottawa that he realized the true position of the Empire.

NO PREDICTIONS BY DE VALERA

Irish President Not Attempting to Forecast Outcome of Negotiations With British

Canadian Press and Associated Press

Dublin, Irish Free State, Oct. 6.—President Eamon de Valera arrived home to-day from London, where he participated yesterday in a conference with members of the British Cabinet.

It was arranged that a conference of the two governments should be held Oct. 14 to try to reach an agreement on the question of the Free State's refusal to pay land annuities to Great Britain.

Mr. de Valera's statement yesterday in an initial step. "Mr. de Valera said, 'I won't venture to predict the result of the negotiations which will follow.'"

He said the continuation of the tariff duties imposed by Great Britain on Free State goods following the refusal to pay the annuities did not provide "the best atmosphere for negotiations" but added: "We are prepared to try, however."

NO PAYMENT

The British Government, during yesterday's conversations, offered to cancel the duties, he said, if the Free State Government would pay over the annuities pending negotiations, but he said he was not prepared to do that.

"The question of the Free State remaining within the British Commonwealth of Nations was not raised at the conference," he said in answer to a question, "and it is not an issue at all in these negotiations."

When the question of a successor to James R. McNeill, whose resignation as Governor-General of the Free State was accepted by the King this week, was brought up, Mr. de Valera declined to comment.

The land annuities in question amount to about $15,000,000 a year. They were provided for when the Free State was set up in 1922 and were to reimburse owners, most of them British, for land turned over to Irish farmers.

CHURCH GROUPS SPEEDING WORK

Commissioners of United Church Have Busy Day at Hamilton, Ont.

Canadian Press

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 6.—In an effort to finish their sittings to-morrow, the commissioners of the United Church General Council were engaged with another heavy round of business to-day. All sessional committees able to complete their reports to the council will be heard before the end of the session.

For the last few days, committee members have done double duty, attending the sittings of the General Council and working on their reports at special meetings. The necessity of hearing all reports back to the council in about two days will shorten the time left for discussion on the floor of the house. As a result, if unanimity cannot be reached some questions may be left with standing committees to pass on before the council next gathers at Kingston in 1934.

The council, which has so far been inclined to accept most committee recommendations, has yet to face the economy recommendations of its special committee.

MUSSOLINI PAYS FINE

Rome, Oct. 6 (Associated Press).—Premier Mussolini smilingly paid a fine of five lire (about twenty-six cents) to-day after he had made an almost perfect score at the National Rifle Tournament. He fired a military rifle twenty-four times, each shot hitting the target and twelve clipping the bullseye. But as he turned from firing he failed to open the breech bolt of the rifle and Secretary Battistoni said: "I am sorry, Your Excellency, but you are fined five lire."

BRITAIN FACES RAIL DISPUTE

Secretary of Men's Union Says Wage Cut Will Be Fought

Canadian Press

Melton Mowbray, Eng., Oct. 6.—First hint of organized opposition to proposed reduction of railwaymen's wages has come from this town, where C. T. Cramp, general secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, yesterday evening warned that efforts to enforce the cuts might bring "a great industrial struggle."

Mr. Cramp said: "We are facing demands of further reductions in our wages and, if I judge the situation, those demands will meet the sternest resistance possible, possibly to the extent of a great industrial struggle during the coming winter months."

His pronouncement came after perusal of an announcement made last Friday that a general 10 per cent cut would be launched to take the place of percentage reductions from wages which have been in effect since the spring of 1931.

The announcement last week was issued at a conference between railway executives and union officials. It said: "The present percentage reductions in railway wages will be replaced by a deduction of 10 per cent on all earnings, operating so that the minimum weekly wage will not be less than 38s."

(Should the proposed reduction be put into effect it would mean railway employees would lose about 5 per cent of their present wages, reduced in 1931. The reductions at that time amounted to 5 per cent on all earnings of more than 40s a week (about $10) and 2½ per cent on all earnings below that figure.)

COMMENTS ON HOOVER SPEECH

Canadian Press

New York, Oct. 6.—President Hoover arrived back in Washington to-day after delivering the first major speech of his campaign.

Before a farm-belt audience at Des Moines, Iowa, Mr. Hoover told of the reconstruction ladder the government had built to help the United States climb from the slough of depression. He promised the tariff wall would be heightened if it should be found necessary to protect the home market for farm produce.

Comment on the speech was varied. Frank J. Riley, secretary of the New York State Grange (farmer organization) said: "Every thinking farmer will support your broad and sound reconstruction programme for farm and home."

Against it were the words of Senator Patrick Harrison, Mississippi Democrat and power in farm circles: "It was the cry of a drowning man. We are not the farmers' desire, but a tariff readjustment that will place agriculture on an equality with other industries."

Thus the complicated, two-sided picture is complete in abbreviated form. SAYS FALSEHOODS VOICED

As his special train carried him through Indiana the President halted it at Fort Wayne to tell a station crammed with people that "deliberate, intolerable falsehoods" had been spread against him throughout the mid-west the last few weeks.

William Gibbs McAdoo, hoping for election in California as federal senator under the Democratic banner, charged Mr. Hoover with "completely misrepresenting the Rooseveltian position with regard to agriculture."

The former Treasury Secretary said Mr. Hoover had quoted Democratic criticism of the present tariff as carrying a promise of tariff lowering by Mr. Roosevelt if he should succeed in the November election.

"We have no such intention," Mr. McAdoo said.

COAL STRIKERS FACING TRIAL

Associated Press

McAlester, Okla., Oct. 6.—After a night in state prison cells, 100 striking coal miners, arrested for picketing of the Little Hohen mine in defiance of a district court injunction, faced prosecution to-day on felony charges of conspiracy against the state.

James Springer, Governor, W. H. Murray's special prosecutor, declared he intended to stop picketing in the McAlester mining district if it meant arresting all of the approximately 2,000 workers.

STORM DEATHS IN MEXICO

Associated Press

Mexico City, Oct. 6.—While wintry blasts sent the temperature down to thirty-six on the Mexican plateau yesterday evening, high winds, lightning, rains, hail and floods struck elsewhere in the republic, causing six known deaths and heavy property damage.

Four were killed by lightning at Guadalajara, a school was drowned near San Gerónimo, Oaxaca, and a child was killed during a wind storm at Tampico. Unusually severe floods threatened half a dozen towns in the state of Chihuahua, while two days of heavy hail ruined all crops around Villa Matamoros, in that state.

Temperature on Plateau Goes Down to 36; Windstorms and Floods

Associated Press

North Bay, Ont., Oct. 6.—Old Man Winter got in an early start to-day as snow and sleet were recorded from some sections of New Ontario, and temperatures as low as twenty-six degrees were recorded.

Snow fell during the early hours between White River and Chapleau, and between Chapleau and Carleton Place. Sleet was reported from Matheson to Island Falls on the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, snow also was reported.

Big Wheat Farmer To Plant Large Area

Associated Press

Helena, Mont., Oct. 6.—Thomas D. Campbell, reputed to be the world's largest wheat farmer, is preparing to seed a "substantial" part of his large acreage on the Crow Indian Reservation in eastern Montana, confident he asserts, that "fifty-cent wheat" will be a thing of the past by the next harvest.

The former engineer, whose industrialized 95,000-acre Montana holdings produced 625,000 bushels of wheat in 1921, shared the distressing results of low prices and drought with other agriculturists of the United States. The crop that cost more than a quarter of a million dollars to put in two years ago was caught by the drought. Much of it did not come up.

The Japanese-owned South Manchurian Railway Co. in Manchuria is reported to be planning to extend its lines.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE IS A SOUND POLICY

We are told by the morning paper that the Liberal party of British Columbia has formulated a platform which "contains a determination to urge the federal government to bring in the dole system for unemployment." It has done nothing of the kind. The convention at Vancouver advocated a scheme of unemployment insurance on a contributory basis in order to provide some safeguard for the workers and the state against future economic disturbances.

It is assumed the Liberal party of British Columbia would follow the principle of unemployment insurance which is in effect in Great Britain. This has been referred to in recent years as "the dole." As a system, it got into disrepute a year or so ago when the unemployment fund became indebted to the state, when it ceased to be self-supporting, and the government had to make up the difference. At the time of the financial crisis in Britain last year it was going behind at the rate of nearly $5,000,000 a week, and it had got into debt to the extent of nearly $400,000,000. The chief cause of its difficulty, of course, was the industrial slump which followed the early post-war years, and to some extent perhaps the too liberal hand with which the Labor government dealt with the unemployment situation as far as the government's contributions were concerned. But what ought to be remembered about the unemployment insurance system of Britain is that its operation unquestionably saved a condition very much worse than that represented by the fund getting into debt. As explained in these columns some time ago, this is how the British system works out:

Employed men aged twenty-one to sixty-five years give each week 7 pence; their employer contributes 8 pence, and the Exchequer 7½ pence, a total of 22½ pence (about 45 cents). Young men, eighteen to twenty-one, contribute weekly 6 pence, their employers 7 pence, and the Exchequer 6½ pence, a total of 19½ pence (about 40 cents). Boys under eighteen contribute 3½ pence, their employers 4 pence, the Exchequer 3½ pence, a total of 11½ pence (about 23 cents). Women aged twenty-one to sixty-five contribute 6 pence weekly, their employers 7 pence, and the Exchequer 6½ pence, a total of 19½ pence (about 40 cents). Women eighteen to twenty-one contribute 5 pence weekly, their employers 6 pence, and the Exchequer 5½ pence, a total of 16½ pence (about 33 cents). Girls under eighteen contribute 3 pence, their employers 3½ pence, and the Exchequer 3½ pence, a total of 9½ pence (about 20 cents).

And here are the weekly rates of benefit:

	Dollars
Men aged 21 to 65	4.25
Men aged 18 to 21	3.50
Boys aged 17 to 18	2.25
Boys under 17	1.50
Women aged 21 to 65	3.75
Women aged 18 to 21	3.00
Girls aged 17 to 18	1.87½
Girls under 17	1.25

Persons under sixteen and sixty-five or over are not entitled to receive the benefits. Persons over sixty-five years old are eligible to receive old age pensions.

The insured may also receive 9 shillings weekly for an adult dependent (wife, husband if he is prevented by physical or mental infirmity from supporting himself, dependent father, step-father, widowed mother, etc.) and 2 shillings weekly for each dependent child.

The insured worker receives an employment book, in which during the term of his employment, his contributions to the insurance fund are recorded. Upon the loss of employment he must present himself at an employment exchange, and surrender his book. Thereafter, he must present himself at the exchange several times a week and accept suitable employment if such is available. If no job is offered, he receives financial assistance as appears necessary, and signs a receipt.

The morning paper's criticism of this plank of the provincial Liberal platform on the ground that it actually provides for a dole appears extremely weird in view of the unemployment policies of the Bennett and Talmie governments which it supports. Both ministries have formally announced their abandonment of relief works of all kinds and have announced that in future money will be paid out for direct relief only. If this is not the dole, what is it? We doubt if anywhere else in the world will there be so complete a surrender to this demoralizing system.

The reason given out by the governments for resorting entirely to the dole is the excessive cost of public works. What a commentary this presents on official ineptitude, to put it mildly! What an admission of bankruptcy in elementary statesmanship! Why has the cost of relief works been so excessive that they have been abandoned in favor of the dole? The answer is plain enough. It is because the government at Ottawa never has attempted to deal with the problem in an effective way. It never has given the matter sufficient thought to submit a definite programme to Parliament which it was urged time and again to do so.

For several sessions the problem was not even mentioned in the Speech from the Throne at Ottawa, and only when there was imminent danger of national paralysis did the federal administration take action. Then, all it did was to pass through a measure giving it a blank cheque while implying that it did not know what it was going to do with the money. Combined with this ruinous neglect were the extravagance and waste and the political jobbery which, as far as the British Columbia end of this sorry business was concerned, marked the administration of the funds appropriated for the haphazard, last-minute, second-thought works which were begun—and which now are left in the air.

Two years ago Mr. Bennett emphatically declared, "I will not permit this country to ever become committed to the dole; my duty is to provide work." Instead, Mr. Bennett now provides for the dole. If Canada had been under a system of unemployment insurance this problem would not have been a tenth as acute as it is now.

MR. DE VALERA AND THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT NEARER ACCORD

The controversy between the governments of Great Britain and the Irish Free State over the land annuities question has been boiled down to an agreement to argue it out on October 14. There is to be no empire tribunal to deal with it, and Mr. de Valera apparently has waived his demand for an international court. Representatives of the two administrations will meet on the date mentioned in the hope that a settlement may be reached.

There does not seem to be any change of mind on the part of the Free State president. On his arrival in Dublin to-day he said the British government offered to cancel the duties which it has imposed upon Free State products if Mr. de Valera would hand over the defaulted annuities pending the negotiations. But he said he was not prepared to do so. The question of the Free State remaining within the British Commonwealth was not raised during his conversations with the members of the cabinet at Westminster, Mr. de Valera made plain, and said: "It is not an issue at all in these negotiations."

As is well-known, of course, the land annuities in question amount to about $15,000,000 a year. They were provided for when the status of the Free State was settled in 1922 and were to reimburse the owners, most of them British, for land turned over to Irish farmers. The purchase price was raised in the form of a bond issue which the British government underwrote. Less than half of the amount has been paid.

WHAT CONSERVATIVE NEWSPAPERS THINK ABOUT SOUTH HURON

Comment on the result of the South Huron by-election by The Vancouver Daily Province—independent at times but nearly always Conservative—and the out-and-out Conservative Daily Colonist presents a strange contrast. The Vancouver paper attaches little or no importance to the contest, despite the record Liberal majority, and says it was in no sense a crucial one. But this contention hardly seems to fit in with the government's idea of the election's importance; it thought it sufficiently crucial to send no less than five cabinet ministers to do battle in the Conservative candidate's interest.

But our morning contemporary is commendably frank and says "there can be no minimizing either the character or the significance of the result of the by-election in South Huron. It was definitely a substantial triumph for the Liberal party, and in that respect, too, it can not fail to be regarded as an endorsement of the leadership of Mr. Mackenzie King." While The Colonist notes the return of the Liberal from the constituency in question will not change the distribution of political strength in the House of Commons, it says in conclusion: "According, however, to the social and industrial complexion of the voters of South Huron it is a very definite warning that in some particulars the federal government appears to have lost popularity."

Colonel J. H. McMullin, Commissioner of Provincial Police, says confidence games are on the increase in British Columbia—and according to the General Superintendent of Postal Services at Ottawa, our old friend the Spanish Prisoner is with us again; at least letters are arriving in Canada with the familiar Barcelona post mark. There seem to be plenty ready to succumb to the allurements of what looks like "easy money."

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

KEEPING THEIR WHEAT
The Saskatoon Phoenix Star

Reports from Alberta indicate that farmers in that province who are fortunate enough to be in a position to hold their wheat off the market are going to do so. They have erected buildings on their farms in which to store the grain for an indefinite period. They are exceedingly fortunate to be able to take that course. There should be no surprise at this decision and it belongs to them and they have every right to get as much for it as they can, or at least to get enough to pay costs of production and have a fair margin of profit. The price being paid for wheat at the elevator now will in many cases hardly cover the cost of growing and harvesting.

NEARING THE GOAL
The Baltimore Sun

The blind cruelty of our immigration laws and the obtuseness with which they are administered are once more emphasized in the case of Mrs. Frank Lambert, the Canadian wife of an American citizen. Because Mrs. Lambert's family live in Canada, instead of the United States, she had to get a federal permit when she traveled across Maine from Biddeford to Inverness, N.S., to visit them.

And because of the arrival of a son while she was at Inverness, she was unable to return before her permit expired. She applied for an extension, but it has been delayed, and in its absence, the immigration authorities hewing literally to the letter of the law have barred the poor woman from her home and her husband and have forced her to remain in St. John's, where she is in the care of a charitable institution.

Loose Ends

One must tell the truth in these premises—even if it means growing a beard—the professors also are entitled to the same privilege—and an obvious fact is shown to be correct after all.

By H. B. W.

YOU NEVER realize in this business how vigilantly every word is read until you make a slight error. Then, no matter how obscure it may be, no matter how unimportant you will have the public down on you like a ton of bricks. The trouble with the public is while acquiring the dull facts of any matter presented to it, rarely understands the matter itself. For example, I said the other day that Victoria was deserted after 10 p.m. and that I had often fired a machine gun down Government Street at that time. Several people protesting to me and asked me to stop firing a machine gun down Government Street, even late at night. They said I might hurt somebody if I kept it up long enough. I have promised to give up the habit, though it is a great sacrifice on my part. I did so enjoy this sport. But the fact is that I never did it very often. That was an exaggeration. The public evidently imagined that I led a battery of artillery down there every night.

A MUCH MORE distinguished instance of what I mean occurred in Britain the other day when Lloyd George said the present British Government reminded him of a spectacle he had often seen in a kitchen, the spectacle of a cat which had shoved its head into a jug of milk and couldn't extract it. Several learned people have written to the newspapers to say that they didn't believe Mr. Lloyd George had often seen this spectacle. They thought it must be rather uncommon. One man of particular sapience even suspected that Mr. Lloyd George had never seen a cat with its head stuck in a jug of milk. And the public will worry more about whether Mr. Lloyd George's cat really gets its head stuck into a milk jug than about whether the human beings of the world are getting any milk at all.

I HAVE OBSERVED a similar phenomenon on several days. People have been worrying the life out of me about the picture of myself which I published in this column recently. I realize now it was a great mistake to give myself away in this fashion, for the picture was so life-like that perfect strangers stop me on the street now to discuss it with me, as if it were any of their business. Some ribald fellows, noting that I do not wear the large mustache attached to the picture, have even suggested that there was some mistake and quite obviously felt that the mistake was on my part in not wearing the mustache, rather than on the part of the picture for failing to look like me. They seemed to think that I should start immediately to grow a similar ornament in order to look like my picture.

AND TO SHOW you the extraordinary lengths to which the public's literal-mindedness will go, I must tell you of a charming old gentleman who got me in a corner where I could not escape and said: "You say that picture of you was taken in the fall of 1904. That's eighty-eight years ago. It shows you to have been a man of fifty when it was taken. Therefore, you are 108 years old now. Remarkable. I shouldn't have thought you more than eighty. You are surprisingly well preserved for your age. But I knew you were an old man by the way you were talking. I considered this very flattering. Yet the reactions of the public are curious. I can tell the literal truth about important matters 864 days of the year and nobody pays any attention to it. But if I should venture a little friendly exaggeration on the 365th day to illustrate a point, instantly the whole city will rise up to give me the lie and quite overlook the point altogether, even though it is quite true.

PROFESSORS OF the University of British Columbia, I observe, are taking an active part in discussing the Kidd report and similar sectarian matters. At this there is some protest on the ground that our educationists should stay in their classrooms and not talk about controversial matters. I am all for the professors; not because I think they are sure to be right, but because I think they should be allowed to speak what they like, even if it is only to expose their ignorance, and because all matters worth talking about at all are controversial. If they are right, let us hear them; for heaven knows we don't often get sound advice. About the Kidd report or any other matter of public policy, or any other matter, the professors of the University of British Columbia—and if they haven't heard it before they know it now—as dangerous radicals. Many times leading statesmen have told me that the University is a nest of communism (most of their communists imagine that communism means murder, rapine and the execution of statesmen), and they feel that professors' opinions should be subject to the control of governments in one way or another. I hope this may never occur. When professors are no longer allowed to express their opinions about the Kidd report or about any other phenomenon their chief usefulness will cease. If they are only going to be paid to propagate all our outworn ideas, only the ideas which will be comfortable for our governments, then the sooner we fire them and save their salaries the better. Let 'em talk. Their speech cannot possibly be as dangerous as the dumbness of authority.

THE TENDENCY now-a-days is to consider such people as impractical dreamers or as sacrosanct authorities, too holy to come out into the bay-window of men. Those in authority for the most part regard the professors of the University of British Columbia—and if they haven't heard it before they know it now—as dangerous radicals. Many times leading statesmen have told me that the University is a nest of communism (most of their communists imagine that communism means murder, rapine and the execution of statesmen), and they feel that professors' opinions should be subject to the control of governments in one way or another. WHEN THE chief authorities announce a theory contrary to all common sense, it is my habit to doubt them; not of course publicly, for I am not a man of great moral courage, and to doubt what the authorities say, no matter how absurd it may appear, is to risk the contumely of one's friends and the hatred of one's enemies. Still, I do distrust them secretly, and then when they are finally disproved I announce publicly that I had known the truth from the beginning. This is the safest procedure. Now, I always doubted the theory of the authorities that speed does not often cause accidents, which they argued, are usually the result of bad driving. At last I am vindicated. The results of a survey conducted in the United States shows, according to the Atlantic, that speed is the chief danger. The states where no efforts have been made to check speed, accidents have increased appallingly, where speed has been curbed they have been reduced.

AN OUTSIDE observer would have said this was obvious, that it was too obvious to require any scientific explanation. But there is more in it than that. The human animal wanted to drive faster. Therefore, he immediately conceived the notion that driving was quite safe and blamed accidents on something else. It was easy to get experts to support this notion with scientific rubbish. And one or two gentry having done so, legislatures throughout the land proceeded to legislate on that basis.

YOU can get experts to support any notion, however foolish; but it is more difficult when this notion has once got abroad to change it, for the public instinctively suspects anything which is simple and easy to understand. It seems something which is sound, difficult and obscure so that it can feel a personal pride in mastering the obscurity. It would rather believe that speed is safe than that speed is dangerous; because the danger of speed is simple and clear to anyone, and rather believe the latest theories of physics by which two and two make five or 500 than the old notion that they make four, since anyone can understand the latter and only a clever person can understand the former. In the same way you can get scientific support for the vilest sort of ideas. You can get learned works in twenty volumes to prove that it is immoral for men to be moral and wrong for women to be virtuous. We are rapidly coming to the point where anything will be acknowledged as perfectly true if it appears obviously ridiculous.

PROHIBITION
LEADERS MEET

B.C. Association Supports Dry Candidates, But No Party

Canadian Press
 Vancouver, Oct. 6.—Delegates at the annual convention of the British Columbia Prohibition Association in the First Baptist Church here yesterday afternoon, declined to endorse any of the temperance policies submitted by the various political parties.

Several speakers expressed indignation that Premier S. F. Tolmie had not responded to the association's request for an outline of the Conservative Party's policy on the liquor question. The attitude of the Liberal leader, T. D. Pattullo, M.P., also evoked criticism.

The convention took no action on proposals calling for organization of a dry party for the next election. "We would be doomed to failure if we attempted to nominate candidates with prohibition as the main plank," Walter Hamilton said, "but let each of us pledge our support only to those candidates who favor prohibition, regardless of party."

"We will be like a dog barking at the moon if we put one or more members in the Legislature who will have the courage to fight for temperance," said Rev. Elbert Paul of the First Baptist Church. "We have been bamboozled long enough."

Platform of the Socialist Party, the Four-Point-Plan Party and the People's Party were examined and their temperance policies criticized. "We are not going to be bound by party any longer," remarked Rev. R. J. McIntyre, organizing secretary. He declared the Prohibition Association had not received a square deal from the governments—Conservative and Liberal.

"We must show the people we are not satisfied," he said. "The dirty political trick—the absentee vote—which gave beer to Vancouver has got to go by to pay for it and I will now vote for the man I think is best qualified," he asserted.

"I am disgusted," said Rev. O. M. Sanford in sealing the brewers. "We have been outraged."

"The brewers have got both parties by the thumbs," he declared he was not particular who was premier or which party was in power if it was run on a decent basis.

KIDD REPORT
 The Kidd report and its suggestions on education and liquor were criticized by Rev. Hugh M. Rae, who said that if the report was adopted by the government "we will have a soured and ignorant people."

Rev. Hugh Dobson told the assembly that "we have a splendid chance to win a plebiscite on beer by the glass."

Mrs. J. A. Gillespie, president of the Provincial Women's Christian Temperance Union, in presenting the report of her organization, stated more than 1,000 women members in British Columbia were actively engaged in fighting the battles of prohibition. She discussed the educational pursuits encouraged by the W.C.T.U.

Others who spoke were Rev. Peter Henderson and Col. H. E. Lyon, who presented the "Four-Point-Plan Party" policy.

DESCRIBED AS DISASTROUS
 Vancouver, Oct. 6.—"We have experienced with so-called government control in British Columbia for eleven years and the results have been more disastrous than disappointing; they have been disastrous."

In these words Rev. R. J. McIntyre, organizing secretary of the B.C. Prohibition Association, made his annual report at the opening session of the two-day convention at the First Baptist Church here yesterday.

"Bootleggers have become so numerous and powerful that for the last ten years they have determined liquor legislation," he said. "The system is made to order for them."

The beer saloon is back again," he declared. "Advocates of government control assured us that if their system were adopted bootlegging would cease, crime would decrease, taxes would be lowered, and law and order would be restored. Not one of these promises has been filled."

DRINK AND RELIEF
 "Drink is one of the greatest contributory causes why people are on relief," he said.

Reviewing the year's work, Mr. McIntyre declared it had been greatly affected by the "almost continuous" operation of the beer interests to establish saloons in various sections of the province.

"We have been called on again and again to help set up organizations to defeat beer-by-the-glass plebiscites," he reported.

Nearly 100 delegates registered, and the morning session was spent in preparation for the two-day convention.

Following an address of welcome by the president, Dr. W. S. Reid, came appointment of secretaries and a special group to name standing, special resolutions, policy, finance and nomination committees.

BOY LOSES LIFE
 New York, Oct. 6 (Associated Press).—When twelve-year-old Salvatore Cortes climbed to the roof of St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church in Brooklyn yesterday to retrieve a ball his playmates had batted up there, he failed to notice a skylight. Salvatore crashed through into the midst of 140 other boys who were receiving instructions from Rev. Joseph Fusco in the church below. He was killed by the thirty-foot fall, but the others were not hurt.

Los Angeles, Oct. 6.—A vigorous denial of their reported separation was voiced yesterday evening by Mary McCormick, grand opera singer, and her husband, Prince Serge Malvini, a former husband of Pola Negri, film actress.

In their fashionable hotel suite, Miss McCormick and Malvini denied indignantly that a divorce was contemplated, although Michael Luddy, an attorney for the singer yesterday would neither affirm nor deny the couple had separated.

"I can't understand how such a rumor even started," Malvini said.

 Portland, Ore., Oct. 6.—That they did not believe the story of Paul M. Callicott that he carried from Oakland to San Francisco the suitcase bomb that in 1918 killed ten persons in a Preparedness Day parade, was a statement made here to-day by two San Francisco detectives assigned to inves-igate the case. They examined Callicott yesterday and one of them, Inspector Charles Maher, said he was "disgusted with the case."

NO COALITION FOR ONTARIO
 Brockville, Ont., Oct. 6.—Proposals that a coalition government be formed in Ontario are not being accepted by Premier George S. Henry. The result of a coalition, he said, would lead to the inauguration of the Eastern Ontario Liberal-Conservative Association here yesterday.

Abandonment of party government was not acceptable to him, Premier Henry said, as it had always been his desire to lead an administration such as that now in office, backed by strong anti-virile party.

TO ALL MERCHANTS MANUFACTURERS AND BANKERS . . .

This is the way to BETTER BUSINESS

"Before there is any great upturn in volume of sales for manufacturers of trade-marked merchandise, there must inevitably be a great upturn in advertising volume.

"Because, merchandising embraces every marketing process involved in getting a commodity from the factory to the consumer. Not merely from the factory to the salesman. Not from the salesman to the wholesaler. Nor from the wholesaler to the retailer. But all the way from the factory to the consumer. Including all the in-between stopping-places.

"Merchandising is complete trade. Goods fully sold. Commodities taken to their cash-yielding terminal. When this last step rounds out the procedure... when the ultimate user's cash flows back through the channels of trade... and the way is opened for repeat sales... then we have Business."★

HERE WE HAVE THE ECONOMIC BASIS OF ADVERTISING

For if we agree that merchandising requires this completion of selling, so that goods go into use and are used up, then we establish the place of advertising as a business essential. Advertising holds its position because it simplifies dealing with the public—as to effort, time and cost. It is an intrinsic part of selling at that last step which actually moves the goods into consumers' hands.

Advertising in the Daily Newspapers—if it is geared by intelligent and trained men to do its necessary share in the job of selling—is an unchanging dominant power—the most rapid, direct, simple and economic contact with Canadian consumers.

Higher Wool Prices Benefit Metchosin

Metchosin, Oct. 6.—Local sheep breeders will greatly benefit as a result of the recent advance of wool prices to ten cents a pound, an increase of 100 per cent. WHEAT SEIZED TO PAY TAXES

Protest Against Municipality's Course in Saskatchewan Brings Statement

Canadian Press
Regina, Oct. 6.—Seizing of crops for payment of taxes is purely a municipal matter," said Hon. M. A. MacPherson, Attorney-General, in a Provincial Treasurer, when questioned regarding reported seizures in a rural municipality.

"The municipalities always had the right to seize," he said. "All the government did in respect to tax collections was to authorize by legislation the appointment by municipalities of tax collectors. It must be apparent to all that taxes must be collected if municipal services are to continue."

OWNER'S PROTEST
That wheat was being seized from farmers for arrears of 1931 taxes in the rural municipality of Snipe Lake was charged by A. R. Ble of Belle Plaine, who owns a farm in the Snipe Lake area. The land is being farmed by a tenant.

Writing to the municipality in protest against harsh action and saying he would pay the taxes out of his own share of the crop, Mr. Ble was notified by the secretary of the municipality that Mr. Ble had nothing to complain of as all those in the municipality owing 1931 taxes were being treated alike.

Furthermore he was notified the municipality was compelled by legislation to adopt the seizing procedure. The secretary of the municipality also notified Mr. Ble the matter was in the hands of the bailiff and it was not within the power of the secretary of the municipality to withdraw or release the seizure.

Snipe Lake is in mid-western Saskatchewan and south of Kindersley. Headquarters of the municipality are in the town of Eston.

AUTO DEATH WAS ACCIDENT

Vancouver Jury Gives Verdict on Crash Following Which Miss Agnes Reed Died

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Oct. 6.—Statement that he was the driver of the car involved in an accident on Saturday evening at the intersection of Thirty-ninth Avenue and Blenheim Street here which resulted in the death of Miss Agnes Reed, forty, was made by J. B. Lawson, twenty-eight, to a coroner's jury which investigated the death yesterday afternoon.

In its verdict the jury found the death was accidental and absolved the driver of the car from any blame in the matter.

Miss Reed, who was well-known in the city as head of the home cooking department of the B.C. Electric Railway Company, was driving to her home on West Twenty-ninth Avenue with her seventy-five-year-old mother, Mrs. A. C. Reed, when the crash took place. Miss Reed was killed and her mother sustained severe injuries.

Following the crash W. M. Givins, twenty-six, who was in the car with Lawson at the time of the crash, was arrested on a manslaughter charge and at 8 p.m. Saturday, when Lawson appeared at headquarters, he was also charged. Lawson was alleged to have stated at that time that Givins was the driver of the car.

"I was wrong in saying that," Lawson admitted to his counsel, Gordon Wisner, when giving his testimony. "There was no reason why I should have said it. I'm sorry."

MOVED CAR
Witness declared that immediately following the crash he had moved the car, which he was driving, half a block away.

"We did not think it was a serious accident and Givins told me to get by our car, which was down on Eighth Avenue," he declared. "He went back to the scene and I got the McDonald Street bus down to my house."

Explaining the crash, he said he and Givins had been shopping on Dunbar Street and were returning to the latter's home. They had turned on to Thirty-Ninth and were going to a grade had proceeded slowly for the first block.

Approaching Blenheim Street, he was forced to stop as a child ran across the street and when he reached the intersection he estimated his speed at twenty miles per hour.

SAW OTHER CAR
He saw the Reed car approaching, he explained, but as it was twice as far away from the intersection as he was he considered he could safely pass it. He looked to the right and then the Reed car was on top of him.

He added he did not think the collision had been serious. "Do you seriously say the damage to Miss Reed's car was not serious," asked Assistant Coroner Gordon Scott when he produced a picture of the vehicle. The picture revealed the rear and side of the car had been badly battered.

"The car hit a telephone pole and the curb after it had collided with Lawson's car," Mr. Wisner interjected, stating Lawson could not say definitely what damage had been caused by the actual collision.

GLANCING BLOW
Evidence of Givins corroborated Lawson's statements. Both held to the glancing blow on the left side of their automobile. Miss Reed's car showed damage at the left rear, while the most serious damage to Givins' car was on the left front, he stated.

Lawson denied he had been drifting at all during the afternoon, while Givins stated he had had two glasses of beer in a downtown beer parlor after the Canadian football game, which he had attended.

"There were no other eyewitnesses of the crash," several witnesses were called who had heard it, but none were able to give any definite information as to details.

Miss Reed was still in a hospital in a serious condition, it was reported.

MOONSHINERS ARRESTED
Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 6 (Canadian Press)—Three people were arrested and a giant still valued at $28,000 and capable of producing 300 gallons of pure alcohol every twelve hours was seized in a raid made by Royal Canadian Mounted police and the city morality squad on a house here yesterday evening.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 6 (Associated Press)—Even the dogs are not safe from abductors now. Mrs. A. E. Humphreys, Denver society woman, yesterday reported to police that she had seized one of her three Pomeranians as a maid was exercising them in a park. He later returned with the dog and demanded $50 in cash, she said. In view of the dog's value—somewhere around $1,000—Mrs. Humphreys paid.

Uncle Ray's Corner
Life in Olden Babylon

As we look about a modern city or village, we see homes of many types. Some have walls built of brick or stone, some are plastered on the outside, and some have wooden framework.

climbed a stairway which was usually located in a courtyard. Rooms on the second floor were used for sleeping by members of the family. Servants slept on the ground floor or in huts a short distance from the master's house.

Even the best of homes had little furniture, but there were rugs on the floors and enough chairs, tables and couches to serve actual needs. Furniture made from imported wood was costly.

Windows in the houses of Babylonians had no glass panes. Since the climate was mild, this was no great hardship so far as warmth was concerned.

Most families in Babylonians had to be content with houses which contained only one or two rooms. The walls were built of cheap mud-bricks.

Men wore long robes, and it was hard to tell them from women when their backs were turned. Some persons went barefoot, others wore sandals.

Jewelry was in high fashion. Women wore bracelets, necklaces and earrings, and the same trinkets were sometimes worn by men.

In very early times, it was common for men in Babylonians to shave both their faces and their heads; but fashions changed, as we know from pictures left by these ancient folk. In later centuries, it became a custom for men to let their hair grow long and to curl it. They also let their beards grow, and had them curled!

Priests of Ancient Babylonians
If you could go back 5,000 or 6,000 years, and stroll through the streets of a city in Babylonians, you would find that almost all the houses had walls built of brick. Few trees, except palms, grew in that country; and lumber was hard to obtain.

Most of the houses were of only one story, but some of the wealthy families had two-story houses. To get to the second story, persons in the house used a school topic in ancient history class.

London Conference Plan Lacks French And German Support

Prospects For Early Settlement Based On Germany's Demand For Arms Equality Described As Anything But Bright

Canadian Press and Associated Press
London, Oct. 6.—Information from Downing Street to-day indicated prospects are anything but bright for the four-power conference proposed by Great Britain to consider Germany's demand for arms equality.

Italy accepted the invitation, but neither France nor Germany had accepted up to this afternoon and the unofficial view, based on comments in Paris and Berlin, was that there was not much hope for acceptance.

Great Britain, however, merely offered her good offices in this matter and if acceptances are not received the disarmament situation will remain just as it was before the conference was proposed.

Paris, Oct. 6.—The Foreign Office to-day said the French government had not decided what kind of a reply it would make to the British proposal for a four-power conference to consider Germany's demand for arms equality and that the matter was still being studied.

No great enthusiasm for such a conference was shown in official quarters, but it was said France wanted to know whether Germany wanted the meeting and what her programme would be before a decision is made.

GREATER TRADE EFFORTS URGED

Hon. Herbert M. Marler Tells Vancouver Audience of Orient Possibilities

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Oct. 6.—Japan and China, particularly the latter, buy large quantities of goods which Canada can and does produce. Canada, despite improvement in its sales, is not getting enough of that market, Hon. H. M. Marler, Canadian Minister to Japan, said in an address at a board of trade luncheon here yesterday.

"We know we sell a comparatively small quantity of those goods," said Mr. Marler.

"We know our competitors sell a great deal. There is plenty of room for improvement on our part. All the facts and figures in respect of any commodity are yours for the taking."

Mr. Marler said he had a long list of commodities in which Canada could increase her trade with China, and went on to mention specifically, canned and condensed milk, fresh apples, paper, wheat and wheat flour.

Co-operation of Canadian producers to capture this market was still disappointing, continued the speaker.

He emphasized the need of an organization in Canada to co-operate with the efforts of trade envoys in the Orient.

Canada's organization in the Orient was equal to that of any country and superior to that of many, declared the minister.

Mr. Marler spoke with enthusiasm of the work in the direction of Oriental trade by the Vancouver Board of Trade and B.C. Section of Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

BOMB WRECKS MILK STATION

Faction War in Wisconsin; Farmers Farther West Picket Highways

Associated Press
Burlington, Wis., Oct. 6.—A receiving station operated by the Burlington Co-operative Pure Milk Association was wrecked to-day as an explosion which authorities attributed to outbreak of a milk war.

Only about fifteen feet of the rear wall of the one-story brick building remained standing. John Steinhart, fifty-five, night watchman at the station, appeared an hour after the blast, saying he had been abducted by five men who set two bombs in the building. Windows and buildings within a radius of ten blocks were damaged by the blast.

ROADS PICKETED
Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 6.—The farm war armistice has been broken. After resting up a while, farmers in Iowa, Minnesota and South Dakota were back on the highways to-day, attempting to stop farm shipments to improve prices.

Their activities were concentrated in Iowa, southwestern South Dakota, and southwestern Nebraska, scenes of the most vigorous disputes during August and September.

Traditional weapons of the striking farmers—heavy planks, logs, machine belts studded with spikes, and clubs—were their accoutrements as they again swung into action.

ECONOMY HITS CIVIL SERVICE
Heavy Cuts and Vacations Without Pay Affect Employees at Washington

Washington, Oct. 6.—The economy law with its salary cut, aimed to save $80,000,000 a year, elimination of vacations with pay and its unequal burdens threatened in many instances appears to have had two observable effects on 680,000 federal employees involved.

1—It depressed their morale and 2—Increased their efficiency.

The average federal worker is in a low state of mind these days for reasons which are by no means confined to the fact that he or she has had a salary cut.

For one thing, the government workers resent all the criticism and the vicissitudes that have been directed against them since it first became imperative to cut federal expenses. Although living along on a relatively low salary scale, they have been painted as a group of largely unnecessary drones, working on easy jobs and fattening off the populace.

There is feeling among them that the government has broken a contract with them, that the salaries and advantages they had were gained only by long and progressive effort and should not be wiped out, also there is an undecurrent of sentiment against both Congress and the country because it felt that the economy gouge was taken out of the employees at an unfair deal.

Quite a few fellows in Congress like to berate them year in and year out as incompetent loafers and there has been so much of this political slurr that the government clerks do seem to have a legitimate squawk on that score.

Balanced persons who have been in contact with them for years feel that on the average there is no more laziness or incompetence among the mass of government workers than among any other mass of employees.

Most employees seem to be more angry over their loss of leave with pay than at the loss of pay. They used to get thirty working days off with pay and now they get twenty-four off without pay. That is a loss of six days, and next year all leave is likely to cut to fifteen days. The thirty-day leave has always been considered the greatest single privilege of government work. It has applied principally to Washington, and most postal workers have only had fifteen days all along.

The old theory was that states would be represented proportionately in the civil service here and that the workers should be allowed time to get to their homes, but travel is easier now, most government employees last contact with their old home and become Washingtonians and the appointment system has broken down.

One evidence of the feeling among the clerks is the creation of a new national organization of federal employees, the American Federation of Government Employees. To compete with the National Federation of Federal Employees. The new group is affiliated with the A. F. of L. and holds that such affiliation is necessary in order to obtain the protection to which Uncle Sam's workers are entitled.

But the government employee has come at last to realize that the mere fact that he has a job does not mean that he is not entitled to some protection against ups and downs such as happen to other workers. He is still by all odds relatively secure, but he can lose his job and will do so more frequently unless there is a change in the present trend.

Whenever normal conditions return the federal service is likely to lose some of its best people, who have stayed on partly because their jobs seemed so safe.

But the economy wave probably has increased the efficiency of the service for the very good reason that the employees now realize that if any wholesale firing begins it will be the efficient ones who will go.

The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce already has decided that if it must resort to administrative furloughs, it will do so on a basis of efficiency ratings.

New Strawberry Type in Ontario

Canadian Press
Dixie, Ont., Oct. 6.—A strawberry he claims will revolutionize the industry and permit regular shipments from southern Ontario to all parts of the Dominion has been developed by W. Duffin, local market gardener.

The berry is sweeter and firmer and has no green point. Its firmness will permit shipments to the west and to other parts of the Dominion," he declared.

It is the seedling of a European berry which originated in England and which I practically smuggled into the country five years ago. I had five plants and I loved the seedling from those berries into the ground and thus produced five new plants.

"Each plant produced thirty-five runners while the average Canadian plant will not produce more than ten runners."

The new berry had been registered at Ottawa two months ago, he said. He named it the Duffin berry.

DISEASE MENACE IN PORTO RICO

San Juan, Porto Rico, Oct. 6.—Disease, stalking in the wake of the recent hurricane, has raised a new menace to the people of Porto Rico. Doctors reported malaria and influenza were spreading in the towns of Loquillo, Pajaro and other sections, and that water contamination had caused a fear of typhoid. Anti-typhoid inoculations already have begun.

"My friends, all ask me what I used"

"I had a lovely delicately-colored silk scarf from Paris which was my pride," writes an enthusiastic woman from Quebec. "It became so soiled I had to wash it—which ruined its beauty. I was heart-broken. One day I saw in the drug store a new kind of state-Diamond Tint. The druggist said they were for light shades and needed no boiling. When I found they were made by the makers of Diamond Dyes, I knew that there was something I would dare to use on my precious scarf. (You see, I had dyed all my mourning clothes with Diamond Dyes and knew they were wonderful.) I put a package of Diamond Tint in my bag and it came back as gorgeously colorful as a sunset! My druggist says repeated washings will not fade it. My friends were as delighted as I and wanted to know what I used. Indeed, I'm enthusiastic about Diamond Tint!"

Thank-offering By Centennial W.M.S. Generous

The W.M.S. of Centennial United Church held the October meeting at the home of Mrs. J. W. Bainy, 3000 Street on Monday afternoon, the president, Mrs. Glaspell in the chair. Routine business and regular reports, which were of an encouraging nature, were followed by a devotional period. Hymns sung and scripture read by Mrs. Rolston were missionary and thanksgiving in character.

The president paid tribute to the associate helpers and spoke earnestly of the "Kingdom of God" movement, a meeting in the interest of which will shortly be held. Mrs. J. Prisk contributed two solos in her inimitable style.

Miss Haddock of the Oriental Home, this city, formerly of Prince Rupert, was guest speaker, presenting a word picture of that city and her work among several nationalities in the United Church. Her high ideals of such work and the value of it should live in the memory of her hearers.

Mrs. Rogers, temperance secretary, was appointed to visit and address the Sunday school. The thank offering was upward of $70. Mrs. Saunders, assisted by other members, served a delicious afternoon tea.

Delightful Affair Is Held At "Mountjoy" Yesterday

Bridge Tea at Mrs. F. B. Pemberton's Commemorates Birthday of Women's Workroom and Augments Funds; Proceeds Augmented by Smaller Parties in Other Homes; Lovely Prizes

Philanthropy, that hard-worked hand-maiden of difficult times, masqueraded in delightful guise yesterday afternoon when the Women's Workroom committee celebrated the first birthday of the undertaking with a bridge and mah jong party at "Mountjoy." Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Pemberton lending their home for the affair. In addition to the players at "Mountjoy," a number of hostesses entertained in their own homes, the proceeds augmenting the receipts.

Before the first committee of the League, Mr. Cahane delivered a speech on the laws and conditions now prevailing in Canada in respect to the naturalization of married women and infant children. Mr. Cahane has been active in the League of Nations by Hon. C. H. Cahane, Secretary of State, who heads Canada's delegation to the League.

Canada has already dealt with this matter in legislation which passed Parliament two years ago and was proclaimed into law. The legislation, which amended the naturalization act, sets forth definitely the position of women who marry British subjects.

Under the terms, when a woman who is a British subject marries an alien, she does not forfeit her British nationality because of her marriage unless she acquires the nationality of her husband. Also, if a man during the continuance of his marriage ceases to be a British subject, his wife does not automatically lose her British nationality unless she acquires her husband's new nationality.

The Canadian law goes farther. Under its provisions a married woman who would otherwise lose her British nationality by marrying an alien, if she is a British subject, she may, at the discretion of the minister, be granted a certificate of naturalization.

The provisions of the Canadian act, it is stated, have gone quite a distance in removing certain disabilities which married women suffered in respect to nationality.

Among the players were: Mrs. H. H. Hare, Mrs. J. A. Armstrong, Mrs. S. Colgate, Mrs. Edwin Tomlin, Mrs. T. H. Burns, Mrs. Alan Fraser, Mrs. Hugh Peters, Mrs. C. H. Scher, Mrs. Miss McNeill, Mrs. Birnie Newton, Mrs. H. E. Tremayne, Mrs. Laing, Mrs. McLeod, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Atkinson, Mrs. Gann, Mrs. Stanley Holmes, Mrs. Haslewood, Mrs. J. A. Beedham, Mrs. E. F. Green, Mrs. J. Mavor, Mrs. J. B. Clearhues, Mrs. R. H. Green, Mrs. Charles Wilson, Mrs. A. D. Bechtel, Mrs. J. D. Hunter, Mrs. Agnes Ogilvie, Mrs. W. E. Proctor, Mrs. O. L. Litchfield and Mr. U. Knight, were won as follows: Contract bridge, first, Mrs. C. Jameson; second, Miss Hyndman; consolation, Mrs. Beeding; auction bridge, first, Mrs. K. W. Clark; second, Mrs. J. McLeod; third, Mrs. C. E. Wilson.

WED YESTERDAY AT ESQUIMALT

Miss Alden K. Hale Bride of William T. Rutherford at St. Paul's Church Ceremony

In the presence of a large congregation at St. Paul's Garrison Church, Esquimalt, yesterday evening at 8:30 o'clock, the pastor, Rev. F. C. Chapman, performed the ceremony which united in marriage Alden Kathleen, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Hale, 931 Old Esquimalt Road, and Mr. William Temple Rutherford, Esquimalt Road. The wedding march was played by the organist, Mr. A. P. Bassett, and during the service the hymn, "Lead Us, Heavenly Father, Lead Us," was sung.

Entering the church with her father, the bride made a charming picture in her imported model frock of parchment net. The sleeveless gown was composed of graduated tucks, edged with Valenciennes lace, the high waistline being defined with a braided silk girdle. With this was worn a coatee of net and lace. Her veil of silk fell from a cap of Chantilly lace, held to the head with a circlet of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lily of the valley.

Mrs. C. E. Pitman acted as matron of honor to her sister-in-law, the bride's mother, Mrs. A. H. Hale, who wore a Molyneux model hat of Majorca blue fur felt, with touches of coral. Matching shoes completed this charming ensemble. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses, snapdragons and

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Walkemeyer of Elk Lake Celebrate Golden Wedding Friday

To-morrow Mr. and Mrs. William Walkemeyer, Elk Lake, will celebrate their golden wedding. Mrs. Walkemeyer, formerly Miss Elizabeth Franka, was born in Hildesheim, Germany, and came to America September 14, 1882. Mr. Walkemeyer was born in Brunswick, Germany, in 1860, and came to the United States with his parents when twelve years old.

After three weeks' acquaintance he married Elizabeth Franka on October 7, 1882, in a little town near Chicago, and after residing there three years they traveled 700 miles in a covered wagon from Illinois to Nebraska, the journey taking five weeks. They made their home in Nebraska for ten years, later moving to Iowa. In 1899 they left the United States for Canada, making their home in Alberta, where they resided for twenty years before coming to Elk Lake in 1919, where they have resided ever since.

The entire fifty years of Mr. and Mrs. Walkemeyer's married life have been spent on a farm, and they are still hale and hearty. Their home is situated on Del Monte Road, Elk Lake, and is named "Alta Vista." They have seven children, all of whom are now grown up.

Eight children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Walkemeyer, six boys and two girls, and six children now survive—Theodore in Alberta, Bernard in Alberta; William, who is now visiting his parents; Mrs. Dorothy Christensen, New York; Mrs. Minnie Barnes, New York; and Harry, residing in Detroit, Michigan. There are twelve grandchildren.

The happy couple will be "at home" to their many friends to-morrow evening.

Your Baby and Mine

WORK DEQUISSED AS PLAY GETS DONE MORE EASILY

Mother is occasionally given to flashes of understanding, which usually arrive when they aren't the least bit tired, and son and daughter seem to be especially well behaved and beautiful children with whom it is a pleasure to live. At this particular moment mother is exceedingly understanding. She sees that son is full of imagination and she is quite ready to fall in with his make-believe games and promote them.

She knows, in those understanding moments, that it is a big Indian who is struggling about the living-room wrapped warmly in one of the bed blankets. She knows that it is far more satisfactory to converse with him in grunts and to put across her particular wishes by addressing him as Chief Wum-Pum and asking his intercession in getting the front walk well swept off by one of the most energetic braves—who will probably be himself.

THE YOUNG ACE

She knows, at these soft moments, that it takes a small boy a long time to warm up the engine of his airplane, that much "wasting" and "sneezing" must be stood for before he can get the thing off the living room carpet and headed toward the corner grocery where a much wanted pound of butter is waiting to be delivered. She is quite willing to wait until the airplane has acquired enough power to carry sonny gaily over to the grocery instead of saying "crosby," "For heaven's sake stop being an aviator long enough to go and get me that butter. I need it this very minute."

NO HARDER

She is willing, when she is placid and patient, to think up some artful way of getting accomplished some of the rather monotonous tasks that harass even philosophical parents. It is not really any harder for the parent to be willing to clean and put them to bed in the cupboard for the night. You take all the baby plates and I'll carry out the mama and papa plates. It would be a real child who did not leap with greater enthusiasm to the task of wiping the grease off the plate's face and putting him in the company of the similar brother and sisters than just to scrape plates, wash and stack them in the pantry.

IMAGINATION HELPS

Such subtleties affront only the literal-minded mother who says, "The children just have to face reality, and there is no use in making things easy for them." Isn't there? Most of us make things much easier for ourselves by pretending they are not quite what they are. Let's face it, wouldn't it be a very dry business if we faced reality and pushed vision and imagination out of the window. The child is far more imaginative and full of ideas, and we can make tasks seem easier and enliven their doing, we are getting the tasks done and giving the child joy in the work.

Brilliant Performance Marks Opening Musical Art Society Season

By G. J. D.

What may be regarded as the opening of the local concert season was the first of the winter's monthly programmes, scheduled by the Victoria Musical Arts Society, given yesterday evening at the Shrine Auditorium by the three admirable diversifying artists, Viola Wasterlain, violinist, Barbara Capstone, pianist, and Arthur Johnson, tenor, who, in their gifts and achievements, afforded musical delight not often experienced by local concert audiences. This was seen in the demonstrative applause that followed each soloist's numbers and the society deserves much thanks in its choice, and in introducing these three musicians to the city.

VIOLA WASTERLAIN

When last heard here some seasons ago Viola Wasterlain created a most favorable impression. Since that time she has reached the highest pinnacles of violin playing, and it is no wonder that the tremendous violinist, Cesar Thomson, thought so much of her accomplishments as to award her many scholarships. Any master may well be proud of a talented pupil. In the first number, the famous Corelli "La Follia" (twelfth sonata), the many violinists in attendance saw at once the tremendous violinist's structures with which Cesar Thomson had invested the noble music. Here was everything the violin is capable of expressing; octaves, double stopping, intricate bowings, at times stopping, intense bowings, at times stopping, but these technical tests were superbly surmounted, yet approached with that peculiar awe which violinists play Corelli—the tradition of this early master. She played with the music, never forgetting its character, and her glowing and cantabile, her expression, musical taste and style, her unbounded resources, who in their unbounded enthusiasm were rewarded with three further numbers, the famous "Cradle Song" of Brahms, arranged by Albert Spalding, playing with fine expression and a sense of tone; Paganini's "Spinning Song," arranged by the master, Auer, and "Tosca," another delightful arrangement.

Her second group combined the two arrangements by Kreisler, "Savonice Dance in G Major" (Dvorak), "Ronde" (Mozart). Here again were the double stopping, intricate bowings, and brilliant manner. Her excellent accompanist, Mrs. Karl Weiss, ably supported the soloist, but was not at times a trifle loud.

BARBARA CAPSTONE

This charming and very accomplished young woman of Burnaby made her first bow to a Victoria audience, and it is not too much to say that she came and she conquered. Miss Capstone, too, met with complete success, and received tumultuous rounds of applause. Her performances show brilliant promise, and among future young artists there are few who do so well by the muse whom they have chosen to serve and follow. She has temperament, a keen musical insight and a complete technical resources. Her pianism for one so young is arresting and distinctive.

She chose two numbers, Beethoven's "Sonata" No. 2, op. 31, and Paderewski's "Tune Variations." She invested Beethoven with a tremendous amount of scholarship, disclosing an unerring sense for tempo and dynamic range, a deftness of technique, and a sense of individualism. The short encore number disclosed the gift of individualism, and in the Paderewski number there was genuine pianistic talent, that brought forth instantaneous applause, and she followed with Chopin's waltz in B-flat, played with an unusual dash and fire.

ARTHUR JOHNSON

Mr. Johnson is no stranger to Victoria concert platforms, and yesterday evening again emphasized his artistry and glorious tenor voice. He infused his singing with fine temperament, and in all he undertakes he reveals the infinite pains he takes with his songs. He sings with passion, good musical style united with special intelligence and excellent technique. He sang two groups: "Have You Seen But a Whistle Lily Grow?" (Ben Jonson), a traditional English air of the time of James I.; "Hail to the Chief," a beautiful, and the somewhat dramatic "Quelle Souffrance" (Leonormand); He too, met with great applause and added a song from "Tosca."

"The Song of Gracia" (Bachman-Inhoff) and Deems-Taylor's "Spring," in the second group, served to show how freely the voice could move throughout the compass. Production and culture were evinced in Van Dyke's "The Recluse," and in Cadman's "The Eternal Vagabond," a dedication to Mr. Johnson, in response to a great outburst of applause he gave "I Will Come Back to You," the Scotch air, "Leslie Lindsay," and a Texas cowboy ditty, who, by the way, played all her accompaniments from memory.

Mrs. W. A. Jamieson, president of the society, in welcoming all present to the opening concert, gave an outline of the objects and aims of the society. She said the membership already was well over 500.

SOCIAL, PERSONAL AND HOME INTERESTS

Love Unlocks The Door

By ANNIE S. SWAN

"I don't think that what I do think is that you are not fit to go out by yourself. You look ill, Lily. If father doesn't mind I'll walk over with you." Lily replied, though in a softer voice. They had never quarreled, and if she had not been so distraught concerning other matters, she would have felt even this slight difference with her sister most acutely.

"I won't be long, unless auntie wants me particularly to stop. Some-times she does it if she has a slack night. And you can keep your mind on the man who left the gloves. There they are." She pointed to them on the mantelpiece, where she had laid them when she came upstairs. Jean could have smiled if she had not felt so desperate.

Lily had broken clean away, in a far more complete sense than Ted had ever done; she had shut the door of her inner self, whereas Ted had been loud enough in his explanation of his revolt.

Jean, however, was a clever woman who had inherited a good deal of her father's quiet strength of will and reserve, but she did not understand the life of the heart. She had her own moments of personal depression, when she had felt the dull routine of grey existence powerless to satisfy, but she had never voiced her discontent, but had crushed it down as wicked and unwomanly. Morison at least had set before his children a high ideal of duty as he understood it, which was to set your teeth and endure.

It was a creed, however, insufficient for the young life that had withered in its bloom under his roof. Lily made a neat bundle of the garments she had finished, and there was a curious expression on her face as her fingers touched the dainty things. When it had been neatly tied up, she took her hat and jacket from the peg behind the door, the ordinary everyday things, which reassured Jean, for if she had been going to meet a lover she would certainly have adorned herself. Then she nodded to her sister and went downstairs. A moment later the door shut with a quick bang, and there was nothing for Jean but to go about her evening tasks.

As she entered the sitting-room with her empty tray, her father looked round.

"Has Lily gone out?" he asked, carefully.

"Yes; only to auntie Bell's." "When will she be back? It's a pity. There is a lecture at the Philosophical this evening we might have gone to; Smeaton gave me the tickets. He had them from the man who is to lecture, Dr. Grimshaw. Smeaton met him in Switzerland last summer, and they got to know one another very well. He's actually stopping at Smeaton's to-night."

Smeaton was the headmaster of the school where her father taught.

"It's a pity you didn't speak of it sooner. Lily may not be back in time. You know auntie often keeps her quite late, and this is the day the shop is shut for the half-holiday."

Morison winced, as he invariably did at the word shop, and Jean repeated that she ought not to have used it.

"It doesn't matter," he said curtly. "It doesn't go in till eight; if she's not back I can go myself."

"But there would be time for me to go over to auntie's and tell her." "No, no; never mind. Let her take her chance."

Meanwhile Lily, somewhat comforted by the freshness of the air and the cheerful brightness of the lighted streets, was pursuing her way across to George Street. The little shop kept by her aunt was at a corner, and was really a basement shop, though very snug, and well known to Edinburgh ladies, who were very faithful to Miss Oliphant. She was a character in herself, they often said, and was fond of bringing friends and visitors to see her, as well as her waves, which were certainly very tempting.

When Lily saw the closed shutters and doors, she felt momentarily dismayed, remembering that it was the half-holiday, and that perhaps her aunt might be out. For she was one of those cheery personalities who made friends everywhere, and she was very fond of going out to tea.

She ran down the steps and tapped lightly at the side door. Great was her relief when her aunt immediately opened it herself. She had her hat on, however, a curious, mushroom-looking thing with black ribbon strings tied in an immense bow under her chin. It was not a common hat, and gave a touch of individuality to an interesting personality.

It also made a most becoming frame to a face of great sweetness and winsomeness, albeit it had the lines of fifty years upon it.

Miss Oliphant was of ample proportions, but her buxomness suited her; she was a comfortable person, who looked out upon life with cheerful and philosophic eyes. She smiled pleasantly at the sight of her niece, of whom she was very fond. She liked them both, and looking would have been of them perpetually with her; but when she came upstairs Jean could not stand, and never met him unless slightly she called fashionless pride, for Isabel Oliphant was Scotch of the Scotch, proud of her native tongue, and constantly deploring its disuse. In fact, she represented old Edinburgh, and was one of its most charming products.

The ladies were visitors, and loved her for her quaint sayings and her strong racial characteristics, while not a few Americans had found her out in the tourist season, and sent troops of their friends to make her acquaintance.

"Come in lassie. I was wonderin' about ye," she said, cordially. "Ye hinna been lang wi' the work; there was nae hurry, but I've something bonnie for ye this time," she said, as she held open the door for her to go in. "Dye mind that sofa blanket, wi' the thistles on it, that went to Boston last year?"

"Well, I've an order for itter twa, to be ready for Christmas. Did ye ever hear the like? Can ye do it, dye think? They'll pay any mortal thing to get them in time."

"I'll see. If Jean'll help, we might manage them. She's good at crevels," replied Lily, as she stepped within. "Were you going out, auntie?"

"Jist doon tae the mission. They're gien' the bairns a tea there the night, at least Miss Horne is. She hasna been lang wi' us, but she's worthin' grand, an' she has plenty o' money, which is what we need when we're workin' among poor folk. No that I haud wi' makin' pavers o' them, but there's nae makin' a difference between happiness and misery."

Lily looked disappointed, which her aunt noticed at once.

"If you're in no hurry come doon wi' me. Ye wad like to see it."

"Could I come?" asked Lily, with almost painful eagerness. She felt no special interest in the work of the mission, but the name of Horne acted like a magnet. She would have an opportunity of being near some of her lover's folk, and all sorts of thoughts were in Lily's mind. She was developing on lines which surprised herself, and which would have made Gilbert Horne even more uncomfortable than he was.

"Had your tea? You look too jimp, lass. You sit in the hoose too much. Ho's Jean and the auld man?"

Miss Oliphant was never respectful to Morison; indeed, she did not even in her mind do him justice. She was very proud of the business she had made, and had never forgiven the slight he had put upon it. He had never crossed the threshold of the shop in his life, and only permitted his daughters to come because it was expedient. Miss Oliphant had once told him with great frankness what she thought about him and his treatment of his family. There were good qualities in both, but each seemed to bring out the worst in the other, and it was the best policy to keep apart.

"They're well enough, and there was a letter from Ted this morning, auntie. He's got a place up country from Dunedin somewhere. Not much money, but he'll get the outdoor life he has always wanted."

"That'll be guid for him; he had nae life in Armillan Street," replied Miss Oliphant soberly. "Bit ye doon a meenit, we'll dae yet. Will ye come, will ye?"

"Would it be late?"

"No it's only six o'clock now; the tea's at half-past, an' ye needna stop lang. It's their Christmas, ye see, an' Miss Horne wanted it early in the month for fear she might be awa' at Christmas herself."

Lily did not sit down, but stood at the table in the bright little sitting-room, and began to undo the parcel she had brought.

Miss Oliphant watched her silently a moment, struck somewhat painfully by the girl's fragile look. Also she observed that her fingers, as she untied the string, seemed to tremble.

"Lassie, ye are nae weel," she said kindly. "Sit doon, an' I'll get ye something. It's a doctor ye are needin'; ye'll no gang hame the nicht. I'll send a message to your father that I'm keepin' ye."

"No, auntie, I'm all right really. Don't trouble about me. I've got something on my mind; that's all."

"Something you want to tell me, maybe?" said the elder woman anxiously.

"I'm not sure. Let's go down to the mission, and I'll see after we come back."

Miss Oliphant put no further questions, but one thing she was determined on—that she would go over and see Morison, perhaps that night, if they were not kept too late at the mission.

Apparently the time had come for some further plain speech to him concerning her daughters.

"Jist as ye like, my dear. I'm your Auntie Bell, ye ken, an' ye have nae mither. Hoots, lass, dinna greet. Drink that, see, and we'll gang. You'll see your ain sma' troubles seem like nae-thing."

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggly And Bub's Adventure

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

Little Bub, the rainbow boy, was singing and whistling in his back yard. Also he was banging a stick, or something, on the fence. Bub's mother looked out at him, smiling and said:

"What are you doing, rainbow boy?" "I'm making a sword," Bub answered. "A sword like a soldier has when he marches."

"Why do you make a sword, Bub?" asked his mother.

"So I may have an adventure," answered the little fellow.

"Why?" spoke his mother with a laugh. "I thought you always had adventures with Uncle Wiggly, the rabbit gentleman."

"So I do," said little Bub. "I have had many jolly adventures with Uncle Wiggly, but now I am going to have one of my own. That's why I am making a sword. I might meet the Bob Cat. You know I pushed him down stairs yesterday."

"No, Bub! You didn't do that, did you?" asked his mother in surprise. "Pushed the Bob Cat down stairs?"

"Yes," said Bub looking at his wooden sword to see how sharp it was. "I did, rainbow boy said: 'Now, I'm going to look for an adventure.'"

"Now, you going to take Uncle Wiggly?" asked his mother.

"Oh, yes, of course I am," Bub answered. "Uncle Wiggly takes me, so I will take him. Good-by, mother!"

"Good-by!" she called to him and then the rainbow boy, with his red cheeks, his golden hair and blue eyes and wooden sword marched down the path like a soldier.

It did not take Bub long to reach the hollow stump bungalow. Uncle Wiggly was in the front yard, twinking his pink nose, and when he saw the rainbow boy the rabbit called:

"Hello, little Bub! Greeting Bub, giving the rabbit his Baby Bunny name. 'Will you come adventuring with me?' asked Bub."

"Why, I was just going to ask you that," chuckled Mr. Longears.

"Well, I asked you first," Bub said, and I have a sword, so I'll look for the adventure this time. Have you a sword?"

"No," answered the rabbit gentleman, "but I have a red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch that Nurse Jane Fussy Wussy gnawed for me out of a cornstalk. I'll take that."

"I guess it will be as good as a sword," said Bub. "You can punch any of the Bad Chaps we meet with your crutch and I can tickle them with my wooden sword. Forward, march!" ordered the rainbow boy like a soldier.

Then he and Uncle Wiggly started adventuring. They marched up hill, they marched down hill. They tramped over the fields. They tramped through the woods. All the while Bub had his blue eyes wide open to be the first to see any adventure.

All of a sudden he saw something crawling in the tall grass.

"Halt!" cried little Bub, waving his wooden sword. "Here's an adventure, Uncle Wiggly!"

"No," said the rabbit gentleman with a laugh, "that's only an old mud turtle," and so it was. They marched on farther and Bub saw a bush waving. Drawing his sword he called:

"Halt! Here's an adventure!"

"No," said Uncle Wiggly with a laugh, "it is only Jackie Bow Wow, the puppy dog boy. I see his tail sticking out." But it wasn't Jackie at all. It was Bub's adventure and what happened next I'll tell you in the story after this, which will be Uncle Wiggly and little Bub. But don't let the ice box catch cold and sneeze.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

Thousands who have itching, bleeding or protruding piles have not yet learned that quick and lasting relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor suppositories remove the cause.

Bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The hemorrhoidal veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To get rid of Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, drive out the thick impure blood, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonard, after years of study, found a real internal Pile remedy. He called his discovery HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1,000 patients with success in over 900 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer, no matter how stubborn their case, might try his prescription with a money back guarantee.

So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when MacFarlane's Vancouver Drug store and all good druggists invite you to try HEM-ROID tablets with guarantee of money refunded if they do not end your Pile misery.

DUNCAN CHURCH HOLDS FESTIVAL

Special to The Times

Duncan, Oct. 6.—Thanksgiving was celebrated at the Duncan United Church with special services on Sunday and a harvest home dinner on Monday.

At the evening service on Sunday, the choir sang hymns and solos. The choir was Mrs. Macdonald of Vancouver, Mr. Lucking of Victoria, Mrs. Beasley and Mr. Gamble. Addresses were given by Rev. W. F. Burns and Rev. J. C. Cameron, secretary of the Social Service Council for western Canada. The decorations were carried out by members of the Get-together Circle of the W.A.U.C.

Extra seating accommodation was necessary at both services.

The arrangements for the annual harvest home dinner on Monday were in the hands of Mrs. Peter Flett and Mrs. Mary Clark. Table decorations

We're Glad To Be Here

Safeway Stores is glad to bring to Victoria the advantages of economy and service that have made our stores so popular in other parts of this country.

We opened our first stores in Canada, October 18, 1929. Their public acceptance was immediate and enthusiastic. In the months that have followed their popularity has increased steadily, until today there are 140 stores in Western Canada serving thousands of people conscientiously and satisfactorily, and many families depend entirely upon Safeway Stores for their food supplies.

Quite frequently, when it becomes known that Safeway is coming to town, others in the foods industry, knowing our policies and the advantages therein to the consumer, immediately revise their prices downward, directly admitting that their methods have been wrong.

Since we bring to you greater values, larger savings, and a more courteous, interested and satisfying service than perhaps you have been accustomed to, we believe that you will wish to trade with us, and to this end we pledge our strength.

Every item sold by Safeway bears an unconditional guarantee to satisfy. If for any reason it does not the money will be cheerfully refunded.

Safeway employees in the Victoria store pledge their loyalty to the community of Victoria; will be pleased to carry their full share of the community's burdens, and willingly discharge every civic duty. To assist in this and to better serve you, they are anxious to know you, and invite you to come in and get acquainted.

POLICE GUARD MINE AREA

Danger of Faction Clashes at Pits in Drumheller, Alberta, Region

Canadian Press
Drumheller, Alta., Oct. 6.—Orders from James Sloan, president of the Mine Workers' Union of Canada, to maintain pickets at the Sovereign Coal Company's mine at Wayne until a mass meeting Sunday brought prospects to-day of more trouble in the struggle of unions to gain control of the Wayne field. Royal Canadian Mounted Police were maintaining close vigil in an effort to prevent outbreaks.

Arrest of John Wolkoff, alleged picketer and member of the Mine Workers' Union of Canada, on charges of having dangerous weapons on his person, marked the activities at the coal centre yesterday evening. When searched, Wolkoff was found by police to have stones in his pockets.

Fifty-six members of the United Mine Workers of America went to work in the Sovereign pits yesterday, an official check showed, and more were expected to be on their jobs by this afternoon.

The Mine Workers' Union of Canada, endeavoring to prevent the membership of the United Mine Workers of America from operating the mine, called a strike that so far has gained few recruits from the mine.

Control of the crowds has been made difficult for police through the appearance of many women and children in the front lines. Every precaution against violence was being taken, police reported.

SENTENCE TO BE APPEALED

Case of Elmer Ellis, Heard at Nelson, Comes Before Higher Court

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Oct. 6.—Six prisoners from the Okanagan jail, closely guarded by provincial police officers, applied to Chief Justice J. A. Macdonald of the Court of Appeal here yesterday for leave to appeal from their sentences. The applications of five were refused, and one, Elmer Ellis, was granted.

A. M. Johnson, K.C., appeared for the Crown. The six prisoners were not represented by counsel.

Ellis had been sentenced to three years' imprisonment by Judge Nisbet in the county court at Nelson for breaking and entering the Greater Drug store at Creston. His appeal for a reduction in the term will be heard by the Court of Appeal.

The following failed to obtain leave from the chief justice:

Robert Jamieson and Milton Charles Kennedy, convicted by Judge Swanson in the county court at Merritt of unlawfully receiving an automobile and sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment.

REVELSTOCK CASE

Jack Cartio, convicted at Revelstoke by Magistrate William Maxwell of failing to provide necessary food for his wife and children and sentenced to imprisonment for one year, with payment of a $500 fine or an additional six months.

Frederick Ernest Link, convicted in the Burnaby police court by Magistrate David Gillies of having a still in his possession, for which a sentence of three months' imprisonment and a $200 fine, with the alternative of another six months, was imposed.

Charles Brown, convicted in the Vancouver police court of having the breaking instruments in his possession and sentenced by Magistrate J. A. Findlay to eighteen months' imprisonment.

MILK AND CREAM
PRICE CUT HEREFarmers Over-producing Trade Hopes Reduction Will Stimulate Consumption

Milk and cream prices are falling in Victoria and throughout the Island.

Dealers to-day explained it is not a bulk war such as reported under way at various places along the coast, but is due simply to the fact that there is too much milk.

The wholesale price paid to the farmer, dating from October 1, has dropped 22 per cent, bringing the wholesale price down to three and one-third cents a quart for 3.5 per cent milk, which constitutes the bulk of milk sold.

Retailers have cut their prices to eight and nine cents for a dollar respectively, for five and four-cent butter.

With some 200 dealers handling milk in the greater Victoria area, the price situation, despite the cut, remains highly competitive, the large number of one-man dairies constituting the disturbing element. Many peddlers to hold their delivery customers are undercutting the nominal price either by giving bonuses or by giving extra milk.

tra quart with each dollar's worth of tickets.

Leaders in the retail trade said milk in Victoria, because of higher production costs on the island, should sell at about one quart less to the dollar than in Vancouver, where the trade is trying to stabilize the price at around nine or ten cents to the dollar.

Island milk producers, it was planned, have until now held an advantage over producers on the near-by Canadian and United States mainland where milk and cream prices have been undergoing drastic cuts during the last year, with no increased outlet.

Now it is expected the lower prices will increase the consumption and thus take up some of the over-supply.

One of the leaders in the feed business explained that normally at the end of the open grazing season milk prices should be firming. But with the situation the very opposite this year, surplus milk supplies mounting and prices falling just as the stall-feeding season is beginning, the milk price outlook for next spring when the lower cost open grazing comes in again is still more uncertain, he said.

JURY ACQUITS
EX-SOLDIERFred J. W. Oak Not Guilty of Burning Work Point
Hospital

Accused Testifies and Chief Justice Commends His Demeanor to Jurors

Frederick J. W. Oak was yesterday afternoon acquitted of a charge of having burned the military hospital at Work Point Barracks in February, 1931, after trial before Chief Justice Morrison and an Assize Court jury. The verdict was returned six minutes after the chief justice had given the case to the jury with a recommendation that they consider the demeanor of the prisoner on the witness stand and throughout the trial.

"Can you associate this prisoner with such an ungodly act as deliberately setting fire to a hospital?" His Lordship inquired.

The principal witnesses yesterday afternoon were Mr. Oak and his young wife. The latter told the jury that the principal Crown witness, William Carcadden, had written her husband a number of letters. All had been destroyed in alarm when the couple fled from the military hospital. Carcadden instructed Mr. Oak to secure official letterheads of Military Headquarters and the Vancouver Island Coast Lines, write thereon testimonials as to his character and sign the names of well-known Victorians to the letters. Carcadden had written that the documents were to be used by him after his deportation from Canada, then pending.

MR. OAK ON STAND

Mr. Oak told the jury what had taken place on the night of February 27, 1931, when the hospital was destroyed. He was a private in the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps and he had given Carcadden his cheque to be cashed, being on night duty and unable to get to town. He had never left the hospital buildings that night, knew nothing of the fire, and was brought out and at no time had seen a five-gallon container around the place. Carcadden had later come into the kitchen to announce intention to attend a dance at Colwood. That was the only time he saw the man after his visit to town. The next morning Carcadden had given him $4, all the remainder of his cheque having been spent.

Mr. Oak said that at about midnight he had gone to the basement to stoke up and saw a fire. There was an explosion. He had been somewhat scorched. He gave the alarm and assisted in removing sick men from the hospital.

It was not true that he had a grudge against Nurse Saunders or Sergt. Phillips. The former held his sincere gratitude for having brought him safely through a second and dangerous attack of measles and Sergt. Phillips was one of the best customers of his traveling grocery business while he was carrying on while on bail.

Mr. Oak also denounced, as entirely false, the evidence given by Carcadden at the preliminary hearing in the police court, which had been read to the jury in the absence of the witness.

He was a native son of Victoria West, twenty-two years of age, and his parents resided at Langford.

OFFICIAL TESTIMONY

Constable James Strong of the city police testified to hearing Carcadden assert, upon two occasions, that he "would get even with Oak." One of these occasions was after Carcadden had secured a second cheque having stolen an automobile. Oak had been in the car and had also been implicated in the theft. It was in connection with that matter that Carcadden had made his second threat of "I'll get even yet. I have done a stretch for Oak and now Oak is going to take a stretch."

That was before Carcadden had made his statements to an officer of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who had been sent to Calgary to interview him regarding the destruction of the barracks hospital.

Widens Housing Scheme to

Eight Thousand Homes to Go
Up to Meet Housing Problem

The term "British materials" for housing schemes has been extended to include materials from the British Empire so far as Scotland is concerned, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce has been advised in a report on the subject received to-day.

The Scottish Board of Health which controls the housing scheme in that country has given a ruling that overseas empire doors will not be debarked from use in any subsidized construction if local authorities for any reason or price or quality preferential them. The Canadian product must compete with only British material in municipal schemes and with U.S. and Swedish materials in private construction.

British doors cost about two shillings more than U.S. doors, thus affording Canadian factories a slightly greater advantage than was formerly the case when U.S. doors were mainly used.

The Canadian product will have the advantage of a more favorable exchange rate and free entry as against a tariff of 15 per cent against the U.S. product.

Eight thousand homes are to be constructed in Scotland under the scheme already approved. During the last seven or eight years large areas of farm and waste land surrounding Glasgow have been built up and transformed into attractive residential districts, accommodating 100,000 people.

All other cities in the country, large and small, have been faced with the problem of insufficient housing and have faced it in much the same way.

How stock in four Puget Sound banks was pledged to Seattle and Tacoma banks for loans for buying more stocks, while the original stock in the four banks was held as the foundation assets for the financial structure of the stock of the Bankers' Holding Corporation which was sold to the people of Seattle and Puget Sound, was told on the witness stand, here to-day before Judge Lammiman in the County Court by Irving A. Strickland, ex-prosecuting attorney of King County.

Mr. Colvin came here to testify in the case in which Charles Walters, former bank president of Auburn, Wash., and his son, Ralph Walters, associated with his father as president or vice-president of a number of banking and subsidiary incorporations, opened their fight against extradition from Canada to stand trial in Seattle on banking charges.

The bank president and his son, who have been held by the Victoria police for some weeks, arrived in Victoria several months ago in their private yacht and operated an art store at Broad and View Street. The father was arrested in Victoria and the son was taken a couple of weeks later by Provincial Police at Princeton, B.C.

Merton M. Moses of Auburn, and his wife, Blanche M. Moses went on the stand this morning and told how they had been persuaded by Charles Walters, in 1929, in the Auburn National Bank to buy seventy shares of Bankers' Holding Corporation stock, paying for it $2,450 in cash upon the representation that the holding corporation owned the majority stock in the Auburn National Bank, the First National Bank of Auburn, the State Bank of Winlock and the First State Bank of Bremerton.

Prosecutor C. L. Harrison put Mr. Colvin on the stand and asked him to tell the full story of the investigation he conducted into the affairs of the Walters' banks and subsidiary companies and his examination of the Walters in preliminary actions before they left the United States for Victoria.

Mr. Colvin testified that under examination in Seattle, Charles Walters admitted the Bankers' Holding Corporation had acquired stock in the mentioned Puget Sound banks by buying it with money from the Tacoma National Bank, to which the purchased stock was immediately pledged for security against the loan. He said Walters admitted $45,000 had been raised in that way from the Tacoma bank. There was also raised $50,000 from the Pacific National Bank in Seattle with which to acquire a block of stock in the Bankers' Holding Corporation, and for which loan there was pledged to the Pacific National a block of the Auburn bank stock.

Mr. Walters admitted that all four of the Puget Sound bank stocks had been pledged in this way. Mr. Colvin went on. "Some of it was pledged in Portland, but we could not find out with whom."

"The capitalization of the four banks whose stock was said to be owned by the Bankers' Holding Corporation totaled only $165,000, and although they claimed the corporation held only some half of the stock of each of the individual banks, or some $85,000, yet on the basis of this they had sold to the people of Auburn between $100,000 and $200,000 of common stock in the holding corporation. On a half interest in the banks they had floated all this stock and sold it to the people."

We also found that the total dividends paid on the stock of all these banks was not equal to the amount of the dividend which had been paid on the stock of the Bankers' Holding Corporation. We accused Walters of passing the holding corporation dividend out of capital in order to get the public to buy the stock."

Mr. Colvin also testified that besides the holding corporation, the two banks had formed the Charles E. Walters Co., through which company the sales of the holding corporation stock were carried on. Mr. Colvin also testified that Senator Lynn, who was a director of the bank, had blocked the plan for opening an office for selling to the bank's customers the holding corporation stock right in the main office of the Auburn National. The result was that the Walters opened such a selling office in the other bank they controlled in Auburn right across the street.

Stuart Henderson is conducting the defence. The case is continuing.

RELIEF WORKER GETS ACQUITTAL

Robert Bamford Not Guilty of False Pretences, Assize
Jury Finds

Premier Bennett's pronouncement "every man is entitled to work," was a vital factor in the case this morning of Robert Bamford, well-to-do blacksmith of Victoria, before Chief Justice Morrison and an Assize Court jury.

The charge was that, between June 26, 1931, and April 5, 1932, the accused received $255.50 from the Victoria relief department by false pretences with intent to defraud. Within fifteen minutes after being entrusted with the case, the jury brought in a verdict of "not guilty."

Mr. Bamford was shown to have had $8,698.67 in the bank when he applied for work. In addition he owned a fine home on Moss Street, with three lots, paying over $165 in taxes. He had been employed for twenty years at the Cameron mill and after the fire had been unsuccessful in obtaining work. When the city opened its relief work scheme he applied for employment but did not seek direct relief. He was asked number of questions and stated that "he was not broke but wanted work." He signed documents filled in by clerks. His sight was poor and he did not read the papers. He was employed by the city on the Victoria Road at $3 a day. His normal pay had been around $5.50.

JOHN DAY INTERVIEWS

On June 6 John Day had informed Bamford that he was not entitled to relief work, having obtained resources. Although he had worked for many months, Bamford expressed regret and repaid the city the wages he had received.

These facts were presented in the evidence of witnesses called by W. C. Moreby, K.C. Crown counsel, and Frank Higgins, K.C. counsel for the accused man.

Crown witnesses were: Carlton Rodway, relief office head clerk; Robert McKay, clerk; Frank Smedley, investigator; Joseph Whitton, paymaster; John Day, provincial government inspector, and T. C. Newmarsh, bank manager, who spoke highly of the accused man.

Mr. Higgins said: "There was no attempt by Bamford to defraud anyone. He got the idea this Dominion Government relief scheme was in accord with Premier Bennett's assurances that it was work, not charity. When he found out the true situation he paid the money back to the city. The city had Bamford's work and now also has his money."

For the defence, Mr. Higgins put the accused in the witness box and supported his case with that of Mrs. Bamford and D. O. Cameron.

The jury included P. S. Bone, foreman; G. W. Liddle, T. Fairbank, C. O. Leonard, J. T. Taylor, R. E. McJure, M. Allan, W. B. Morrison and N. Fanson.

The Trades and Labor Council yesterday evening named Harry Owen as its representative on the fair wage board now being formed to advise on salary levels for the outside staff of the city. Mr. Owen was a civic employee from 1906 to 1918.

How stock in four Puget Sound banks was pledged to Seattle and Tacoma banks for loans for buying more stocks, while the original stock in the four banks was held as the foundation assets for the financial structure of the stock of the Bankers' Holding Corporation which was sold to the people of Seattle and Puget Sound, was told on the witness stand, here to-day before Judge Lammiman in the County Court by Irving A. Strickland, ex-prosecuting attorney of King County.

Mr. Colvin came here to testify in the case in which Charles Walters, former bank president of Auburn, Wash., and his son, Ralph Walters, associated with his father as president or vice-president of a number of banking and subsidiary incorporations, opened their fight against extradition from Canada to stand trial in Seattle on banking charges.

The bank president and his son, who have been held by the Victoria police for some weeks, arrived in Victoria several months ago in their private yacht and operated an art store at Broad and View Street. The father was arrested in Victoria and the son was taken a couple of weeks later by Provincial Police at Princeton, B.C.

Merton M. Moses of Auburn, and his wife, Blanche M. Moses went on the stand this morning and told how they had been persuaded by Charles Walters, in 1929, in the Auburn National Bank to buy seventy shares of Bankers'

THE SPORTS MIRROR

Ben Shaves Did Not Appear in Recent Fight Against Lomski.

Promoter "Winnipeg" Chilton Unaware Shaves Was Not Fighting.

Need of Boxing and Wrestling Commission Is Again Revealed.

AN INTERESTING incident on Saturday evening's fight in Victoria between Leo Lomski and Ben Shaves has just come to light. According to a news item in yesterday's issue of The Seattle P-I, Ben Shaves never came to Victoria. The article follows:

"Corporal Ben Shaves of the U.S. Marines rose in anger when he read that he had been knocked out in the third round at Victoria, B.C., by Leo Lomski yesterday.

"Buddy Bishop comes to the rescue of the fighting name of Shaves with a correction. It was Danny Chavez (pronounced shay-veez) who caught Lomski's K.O. blow in the third."

When interviewed by The Times yesterday, "Winnipeg" Chilton, who promoted the fight, stated he was unaware of the fact that it was not Ben Shaves who fought here. As a matter of fact he knew nothing different until he read the item in the Seattle paper. "It was a big surprise to me, and all I can say is that somebody certainly pulled a fast one," stated "Winnipeg."

However, one of the most interesting facts about the whole case was the fact that the following paragraph was headed into the sports department of The Times, as part of a story written in Seattle for publicity for the Victoria show:

"Ben Shaves, the Oklahoma Indian boxer, who is heavyweight champion of the U.S. Marine Corps, insists that he wishes to change his ring name, and declares that from now on he wants to box under his own name, which is Dan Chavez.

"I am convinced that I am going to knock Lomski out and for this reason I wish to drop now on my correct name. My parents in Oklahoma prefer it, too," said the swarthy Oklahoman."

Saturday's card was one of the stiffest knockouts in the history of boxing for some time. The fight game has been dead in this city for many months, and many had hoped for its revival. The fight was a real appeal fed up, and it will take a mighty good card to regain their support.

Saturday's mix-up drew renewed attention to the need of a wrestling and boxing commission in this city. A commission composed of two or three men familiar with both sports is needed. Promoters should be made to have all participants in the city at least two days before the date of the show, and all the contestants should work out and enter the commission. Then it could be seen if all the fighters were in good condition and capable of putting up good bouts.

Lomski has made three appearances in Victoria to date, and in all his bouts he has yet to meet an opponent capable of extending him. Lomski is a means a topnotcher. He has seen his best days and now can only draw in the smaller towns. He appeared in a bout in Seattle a few days ago and the match was mounted as a broken-down old man, or words to that effect, by a prominent columnist in The Seattle P-I. There are several heavyweights on the Coast capable of taking Lomski's measure quite easily.

SCHOOL HOOP LOOP FORMED

High School Teams Will Play in New League; Seven Clubs Are Entered

With seven teams entered play will commence shortly in the newly-formed Lower Island Inter-High Basketball League. Three clubs have entered from Victoria, High, three from Saanich and one from Esquimalt. It is possible an entry will be received from the Oak Bay High. Leslie Hardie, coach at the Victoria High, is responsible for organization of the new circuit.

Hardie and Louis Clark will handle the three Victoria High squads, while Charles Oard, Bert Bailey and Douglas L. Gilbert will coach the Saanich entries. From Mount View, Mount Douglas and Mount Newton High Schools respectively, Clive Kelly is the Esquimalt coach.

Practices have commenced at all schools and coaches are having no difficulty in fielding squads. In the final section at Victoria High School, since most of the players eligible in that division are playing on teams outside the school, the local institution will not enter a team in the city league. However, Coach Hardie said that games with Normal and College will be played in the season to give other lads a chance to get in a couple of matches. It was definitely decided not to form the senior schools league this year.

RUGBY PRACTICE

There will be a full practice of the Oak Bay Wanderers rugby team at Oak Bay Park to-night at 8 o'clock.

No pains have been spared by the members of the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club, under whose auspices the event is staged, to make it a great success and the high standard of junior talent which will be in the show will ensure thrilling finishes in both heats and finals. The complete entry list for the meet, scheduled to start at 7.30 o'clock, was released this morning by Herb Manson, secretary of the V.A.S.C.

HUDSON'S BAY AND NAVY WIN

Defeat Hearts and Saanich United in Opening Wednesday Football Matches

In the opening matches of the Wednesday Football League played yesterday afternoon the Hudson's Bay defeated the Hearts, 4 to 0, at the Heywood Avenue grounds and the Navy accounted for Saanich United, 1 to 0, at the Royal Athletic Park. At Athletic Park Reeve William Crouch, Saanich, kicked off the ball, while Alderman Adam performed the ceremony at Heywood Avenue.

The match at Athletic Park brought together two closely matched clubs who turned in a fine exhibition, considering it was their first appearance of the season. Fifteen minutes after the start Jimmy Wilson, centre forward, scored what proved to be the winning goal for the sailors. Shortly after this Cozier, left winger, was injured and carried from the field. With the start of the second half Cozier returned and the sailors were able to hold their own again. Saanich had an even share of the play but their forwards were unable to take advantage of good scoring opportunities.

The teams followed: Hudson's Bay—Shrimpton, McKenzie, Clarke, Davis, Woodley, Oakman, Nicholas, Fish, King, Purdy and Collier. Hearts—Buckley, Bryant, "Red" McMillan, W. Bryant, Spiller, McBride, Brown, Preston, Champion, A. McBride and D. Newell.

BUNDY WINS OVER TAGLIA

Portland Featherweight Takes Two Last Rounds to Gain Popular Decision

Seattle, Oct. 6.—Andy Bundy, Portland negro featherweight, won the final two rounds of his six-round bout with Rodolfo Taglia, Argentine, by a wide margin yesterday evening and was awarded a popular decision over the South American. Bundy outboxed his opponent five rounds, sealing 127 pounds to Taglia's 122.

Fighting a stubborn uphill battle, Taglia was outclassed most of the way by the fast-moving Portland scrapper, who has fought previously in less than twenty bouts. Bundy went out in the first of the fourth round, scoring with both hands and driving Taglia to a fast pace, with Taglia back on his heels.

SANTOS WINS

In the semi-final, Sammy Santos, flashy Seattle Filipino, lightweight, scored a six-round decision over Santiago Zovilla, Panama. Santos tried hard to land his knockout wallop, but the Panama return, a master at rolling, with punches, was going away when Santos landed a series of punches.

Bobby Gray, San Jose feather, fought a shrewd and well-planned battle to take a six-round decision over Max Terley, Los Angeles.

NEWARK WINS AFTER RECORD WORD BATTLE

Forty-minute Argument Features 9 to 8 Victory in Little World Series

Disputed Play in Ninth Inning Highlight in Keen Game With Minneapolis

Minneapolis, Oct. 6.—Newark goes into the sixth game of the little world series needing only one victory to win the annual duel between the International League and the American Association.

Don Brennan, its 220-pound right-handed ace, who has delivered two of his club's three victories, was assigned to pitch against Dutch Henry, Minneapolis southpaw, who accounted for one of his team's two wins.

Yesterday's 12 to 9 victory for Newark marked the longest dispute in the history of the series, instituted in 1917.

There was a forty-minute argument on the field on a question which decided the game and this dispute was carried over into a hot debate lasting more than two hours before the advisory commission, which split it on the moot point.

Plunging Shields Pilots V.A.C. To Crushing Victory

Big Four Canadian Rugby Champions Hand Victoria 35-to-4 Setback in Night Battle; Steam-roller Tactics Prove Effective Against Light Victoria Line; Lynn Patrick Scores Lone Touchdown for Victoria Late in Final Quarter

Vancouver, Oct. 6.—Crushing their opponents under a heavy line plunging attack, the green-shirted, well-drilled V.A.C. grid squad smashed the Victoria eleven under a 34-to-5 score in a big four Canadian football game here yesterday evening. The Vacs' powerful line, aided by brilliant broken field running by Cokey Shields, smashed and plunged its way through a fast but much too tight Capital crew.

Undaunted by the mounting score as touchdown after touchdown was reeled off, the visitors threw themselves into the fight and brought the crowd to its feet with some of the prettiest blue forward passes ever seen on a Vancouver gridiron. Gribble and Lynn Patrick were outstanding for the Victoria squad, the former tossing passes after passes into the waiting hands of Patrick but a light line that failed to hold V.A.C. tacklers, ruined many promising plays.

NEGRO FIGHTER STOPS LENHART

John Lewis Scores Technical Over Tacoma Battler in Fourth Round

San Francisco, Oct. 6.—John Henry Lewis, sensational negro light heavyweight from Prescott, Ariz., added another victory to his string here yesterday evening as he stopped Fred Lenhart, Tacoma, Wash., in the fourth round of their scheduled ten round fight.

Lenhart received a bad cut above his left eye and the referee stopped the bout after the fourth round had ended.

The eighteen-year-old high school boy from Arizona had a clearcut advantage over his more experienced and better known opponent as the fight ended. He won the first two rounds by decisive margins, outpunching Lenhart and forcing the contest through the first three sessions. Lewis weighed 172 1/2 pounds and Lenhart 175 1/2.

In a six-round semi-windup, "Big Boy" Rawson, Boston heavyweight, won a decision over "Tiny" Abbott, Buxton, Hawson scored more often and effectively during the contest. Tommy Collins, Oakland heavyweight, knocked out Bob Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., in the fourth round.

CLARK GRIFFITH MAY BE MANAGER

Washington, Oct. 6.—A hint that Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington American League baseball club, may himself become a manager was given yesterday by Griffith.

Asked if he was considering returning as manager, Griffith said it was possible. He added, however: "Only if I am unable to find the man I want will I take over the management myself."

Wheat Prices Slip Sluggishly Down In Quiet Trading

Winnipeg, Oct. 6.—Wheat prices slipped sluggishly downward today in a quiet trading market which, while it showed an undertone of firmness, failed to attract buyers. Values slumped to new lows but strengthened somewhat near the close. Prices closed 1/4 to 1/2 lower than Wednesday's final figures.

October closed at 48 1/2; November at 49 1/2; December at 51 and May at 56 1/2.

A little export trade came in on the

WINNIPEG

(By Logan & Bryan)

Winnipeg, Oct. 6.—Wheat: Wheat held steady and unchanged during the first period, but following another break of 2 cents in Chicago our market declined to 1/4 under the close last night. On the break a small amount of export business was met, but the market really reacted upward with 500,000 bushels of December wheat being bought by a well-known Chicago house.

Just what this buying was not known, but many of the local pit crowd were of the opinion that it was for the big Canadian interest. The market recovered most of the loss, but did not show any real strength and the upturn was difficult. Chicago also found difficulty in holding slight upturn. Winnipeg May wheat is now fractionally higher than Chicago May. There was also some buying against bids, but this was not important. Very little export business could be traced out of this market. Seaboard placed export sales around 700,000, including a cargo of Manitoba sold to China, but this business could not be confirmed here or at Vancouver.

The cash market remained quiet. There was a little better demand for three and four wheat grades that are rather scarce. Very little wheat was changing hands and all spreads were unchanged. Black Sea shipments of wheat this week are 1,176,000 bushels, 1,000,000 being from Russia. Winnipeg country marketings in the west yesterday were 3,776,000 bu. 3,036,000 a year ago.

Winnipeg closed 1/4 to 1/2 lower.

Coarse grains—These markets held steady to a little firmer. There is a small export business passing in oats and barley, just odd small lots, but there is no pressure on the markets and farmers are not marketing coarse grain at these prices.

Outs closed 1/4 to 1/2 higher; barley, 1/4 to 1/2 higher, and rye, 1/4 lower to 1/2 higher.
